

Dear Chairman Powell and Commissioners,

As one of this country's millions of citizen who need to be informed about the political and electoral issues that affect my life, I am appalled by the lack of informative television programming.

Local public affairs programming is virtually non-existent--constituting less than one half of 1% of all local programming. More than half of news broadcasts prior to the 2002 elections did not include a single campaign report. Our democracy is genuinely at risk when many Americans don't know basic facts about the candidates or the issues, as was the case in the 2000 elections.

Since broadcasters have clearly failed in their obligation to serve the public interest, the FCC must define meaningful public interest requirements that include local civic and electoral affairs programming. At a minimum, broadcasters should air three hours per week of local civic and electoral affairs programming, with at least two hours devoted to substantive election coverage in the six weeks prior to Election Day.

As the elections approach, a well-functioning democracy requires that citizens have access to a diversity of opinions and voices on the choices confronting us.

Sincerely,

Denise and Sherman Nelson
